Jimmy Cornell is the guru of long distance sailors. Having sailed 150,000 miles in his own boats and completed 2 circumnavigations, he was the first author to tackle the problems of world cruising in a systematic way. His wide ranging surveys conducted among cruising yachts in all the oceans of the world have dealt with every aspect of voyaging under sail and have proved an invaluable source of advice and reference for long distance cruisers worldwide. --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.
