He has worked as a school psychologist and currently teaches educational psychology every year at the undergraduate level. In 2006, John received the University of Texas at Dallas Excellence in teaching award. His research has included publications in the Journal of Educational Psychology that focus on the contextual aspects of affectively-toned cognition and children's self-regulatory behavior as well as teachers' perceptions of children from divorced families. He has been a member of the editorial boards of Developmental Psychology and Child Development. His publications include these exceptional McGraw-Hill texts: Child Development, 13th Ed; Life-Span Development, 14th Edition; Adolescence, 14th Edition; Psychology, 7th Edition; and Educational Psychology, 4th Edition.

I loved how easy this was to navigate on my phone. I do wish it was available on any other of my devices as I had to zoom in and scroll back and forth all the time, but it did the job. Can search by key words or phrases. Super useful when you can't remember on what page you read something.

The book itself is fine, but I strongly recommend against purchasing or renting it from . Unless the seller specifies otherwise, it will not have a Connect access code, which means you cannot do coursework if your professor uses Connect, without paying for the book twice. It also does not support Kindle text-to-speech or VoiceOver in the Kindle app.

Very fast shipping and book was as stated in the description!
